Based on the text (p. 169), the population of Israel is composed of two main factions: Israelites and Palestinians. There is much conflict between the two groups. For example, Palestinians, who have fewer rights, are often confined to their homes during threats of terrorism. According to a Jerusalem Post Newspaper article by Margot Dudkevitch [<http://www.jpost.com/Editions/2000/10/02/News/News.13109.html>], violence is now sweeping Israel due to tensions caused from such inequalities. Along with more than a thousand wounded people, two border patrolmen and twenty-nine Palestinians have been killed.

Deadline for vol. 1 issue 2 submissions, October 16, 2000 10:00AM.
