

GEOnotes

Volume 1 Issue 3

The Extra Credit Opportunity of a Life Time

Eastern Asia

October 25, 2000 10:01AM

Mr. Joey Coomer joey888267@hotmail.com

Based on the text (p. 229), the earliest inhabitants of Japan were the Ainu people, who were pushed northward by groups from Korea in the A.D. 400s. According to the Japan Times article "Archaeologists find 'oldest' habitation" on October 24, 2000, though, archaeologists have recovered remains of Japanese inhabitants from six hundred thousand years ago [<http://www.japantimes.co.jp/cgi-bin/getarticle.pl5?nn20001024a1.htm>]. The archaeologists believe the finding to be one of the oldest recoveries in the world.

Deadline for vol. 1 issue 4 submissions (Eastern Europe), November 6, 2000 10:00AM.