According to the text (p. 512), the ethnic variety in Brazil is quite varied racially and culturally. The official language of Brazil is Portuguese, which reflects the European influence on the area. The European peoples are mainly based in the large cities in Brazil. The article "The largest Italian community outside Italy" from the Brazil Times (<http://www.estado.com.br/english/english.html>) says that many Italians have come to Sao Paulo in search of prosperous work. The Italian-Brazilian community, however, is less organized than many other Italian immigrant populations, such as that of the United States.

Deadline for vol. 1 issue 6 submissions (Western Europe, North America & South Pacific), November 27, 2000 10:00AM. THIS WILL BE THE FINAL ISSUE!
